Pinnacle Society meeting of leading Executive Recruiters reports record turnout in Las Vegas.

Pinnacle Society, a national organization recognizing 75 of the top-producing executive recruiters in the United States, met recently at the Ritz Carlton Resort in Lake Las Vegas.

Increasing sales for nearly all of the recruiters polled indicates robust hiring in the U.S. continues despite rising oil prices and higher interest rates.

Pinnacle President Danny Sarch said, “The job market is back! We had 47 members in attendance.” A best ever (west coast) turn out for the organization founded 15 years ago by Ben Meador and the late Tony Byrne.

Mike Goldman one of Pinnacle’s founding members and a Past President said, “The educational programs were some of the best ever at a Pinnacle event.” Speeches by Danny Cahill, Joe Pelayo and Craig Silverman and roundtable best practices discussions were lead by Pinnacle members Tom Keough and Kim Knoll during the three day conference in Vegas.

The group works hard and plays hard too. They enjoyed a Saturday dinner on the strip at Wolfgang Puck’s Postrio in the Venetian.

The next Pinnacle Conference is scheduled for April 6th – 8th, 2006. Details and membership information at <http://www.pinnaclesociety.org>
